Objectives

iMining consists of two divisions - consulting services: Safety, operational excellence, innovation & change leadership and electronic control & monitoring systems for B2B applications. The branding needs to encapsulate these two either through the logo or the supporting visual language.

Requirements for the logo and visual language:

- The ‘i’ in the name needs to make people think of the internet and online visibility. Fortunately, anytime an ‘i’ is added to the start of a company name, the audience immediately makes the connection to technology, the internet and it being set in a digital space.
- Black and yellow are considered strong colours for the industrial sector but I have offered alternative to these.

Key tag-line:

iMining can make your business easier to manage and more productive by embracing technology.

I placed all focus on the 'i' in this route and crafted a very digital, tech based looking 'i' to sit next to the contemporary typeface for MINING.

I cut into the 'i's in MINING to create the tittle of the 'i' but cut them diagonally to follow the same slant of the 'N'.

The colour palette is a soft yellow and a very dark navy hue, both of which contrast against one another perfectly.

Blue symbolises trust, loyalty, wisdom, confidence and intelligence while yellow signifies positivity, clarity, energy and optimism.

A more modern integration of the (Pty) Ltd in this route.

A more simplistic option with the “i” duplicated to create a sense of movement and forward motion, something which technology is a driving point for.

With the ‘i’ tying the name back to the digital, technological space and MINING speaking for itself this route is one of the more straight-forward designs without any of the frills and fancies.

The colours are bronze and charcoal, an earthy colour space representing the actual colours found within the mines.

The logo consists of the word 'AMINING' in a bold, sans-serif typeface. The letter 'A' is rendered in a bronze color and features a stylized design with a vertical bar on its left side and a horizontal bar across its middle, creating a sense of movement. The letters 'MINING' are in a dark charcoal color. The overall design is clean and modern, emphasizing a technological and industrial theme.

This route takes inspiration from the actual mines. The chevron “i” and the angled parallel lines are inspired by the angles of the mine shafts.

I wanted to keep the design as clean as possible and as balanced as possible with the tittle of the “i’s” mirroring each other.

The technology aspect will only be implied in the actual name in this route.

The logo for I-Mining, featuring the word "MINING" in a bold, dark blue, sans-serif font. To the left of the word is a stylized "I" composed of three parallel diagonal lines: a thick orange line on the left, a thin white line in the middle, and a thick orange line on the right.

I chose to combine the 'i' and 'm' to form one double represented letter in this route. The 'i' is cut into the formation of the 'm' and separated through the use of the yellow colour.

This is probably the most contemporary of the options and depends on the actual company name to emphasize the technology and mining links.

The yellow and charcoal colour scheme work well together and are significant of the industrial sector.

The logo consists of a stylized lowercase 'i' in yellow, followed by the word 'MINING' in a bold, uppercase, charcoal-colored sans-serif font. The 'i' is designed with a thick vertical stem and a small, triangular flag on top, which is cut into the first vertical stroke of the 'M'.

The “i” in this logo is a very abstract tie back to a digital space and uses nodes as a design element.

The “i” is set lower than MINING so it stands out as a sort of separate entity but is read as one.

I used the charcoal and yellow colour scheme in this route as well.

This is a bit of a wild-card design. I have stacked and separated the letters of mining for a slightly different layout to the rest. The “i” is created by using pixels to form the shape of the “i”.

I used navy and teal and a blended gradient for the “i”.
